

RELI 161: Introduction to the History of Christian Traditions

The course will explore major steps in the history of Christianity from the first century of the common era until our time. We will note the multiple varieties of Christian expressions, and will study the different manners Christianity developed in different geographical, political, and cultural locals, as well as in different eras, political realities and sets of value. Likewise, we will examine central leaders, groups, churches, ideas, texts, music, art, novels, and films.
