REL1242
New Religious Movements in America

This course examines how new religious movements contribute to the contemporary cultural and political energies in the United States. We will examine the political, social, and religious nature of new religious movements, as well as how these movements intersect with media, policing, science, and technology.

No prerequisite

Nathan Jumper
jumperna@live.unc.edu
Tuesdays & Thursdays
9:45AM-11:00AM

General Education Requirements: SS, NA