

RELI235

Place, Space, and Religion

This course examines the relationship between religion and architecture. What makes certain kinds of spaces religious? Is there anything religious about the Washington Monument or public university campuses? In addition to investigating the spatial qualities of sacred places, the course also looks at the ideologies of non-religious spaces. We will address case studies from diverse locations, religious traditions, and time periods.

Ehsan Sheikholharam
ehsansh@ad.unc.edu

Tuesdays & Thursdays
9:30AM-10:45AM

General Education Requirements: VP

