

RELI 424

Gender Theory and the Study of Religion

This course examines the intersection between religion and gender. We will explore how religion shapes certain understandings of gender and, in turn, how religious people experience, negotiate, and even upend those understandings. We will closely consider the impact of feminism, intersectionality, queer, and transgender studies on the study of religion. We will survey a range of theorists and traditions, from Gloria Anzaldúa to Patricia Hill Collins, and from evangelical Christianity to Santería.

Annie O'Brien
annieo@live.unc.edu

Mondays and Wednesdays
3:35PM-4:50PM

General Education Requirements: PH

